

When my ad tech company released a new product that allowed advertisers to showcase “influencer” data, I developed this concept to illustrate the idea and sell in one of our major airline brand advertisers. The day we released this aligned with the very first flights available to Cuba. Travel enthusiasts across the US talked about “getting to Cuba before it gets gentrified”. This concepts tapped into that emotion perfectly, encouraging people to buy a ticket, NOW.